Nationally known Christian financial advisor Dan Celia is working with the AFA Planned Giving team. Along with Diane O'Neal, Dan can offer ways that you can be the best steward possible with the resources God has entrusted to you.

And AFA's help is offered at no charge to you.

Dan and Diane look forward to serving you by helping you select the best means of leaving a legacy that will last for generations to come.

Making $ense of your dollars

Diane came to American Family Association in 2002 from a career in banking as a Regional Compliance Officer with fourteen branches under her immediate supervision.

Prior to that she gained experience in a number of banking areas such as being instrumental in establishing a new branch bank. Upon coming to AFA she was office manager for AFA Center for Law and Policy until July 2007. She serves as Director of Planned Giving for AFA where she directs, manages, and oversees the Planned Giving Program as well as the administrative duties of the department.

Diane's husband, Bob, is a pastor and they have three children and six grandchildren.

Dan counted money with the big boys on Wall Street until 28 years ago when he started his own trust company. Later, his walk with Christ led him to begin Financial Issues, a radio program now airing on Sirius Satellite radio and more than 500 radio stations, including the American Family Radio network. In 1998, he sold his company and began investing himself fully in his ministry.

"Our goal in this ministry is to help people make good financial decisions," he said. "After all, God does own all of it – not just what we give to him."

A sound and conservative approach to stewardship is the rudder that guides his ministry. "Stewardship means that we are responsible to the Gospel with our dollars to make sure that the Gospel is propagated," he said.

"I encourage you to be a 'good and faithful servant' of God's resources. Through proper planning, your legacy of love can be a continuing testimony to His goodness."
